Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Theodore Roosevelt: By One Who Voted for Him Three Times Words fail us, for we cannot hope to picture fully the many sides of this national world here. Yet we can mention a few of his deeds and qualities for the benefit of his myriads of mourning friends and the consolation of his family. Theodore Roosevelt, born rich, in New York City, and educated in Harvard, and on a Dakota ranch, was and is a mighty and fearless leader of men, one of our greatest Presidents, a near-martyr by assassination, in fact. I am glad I emphasized the value of the ballot (for many will not go a block to vote), when I went 750 miles and back from Ann Arbor, Mich., where I studied law, to Vermillion, S. D., 1500 miles in all, when I cast my first ballot after reaching voting age for the martyred McKinley and Roosevelt. I thought then, and still believe, that both Republican leaders were more fully pledged than the Democrats to the idea that big business is not necessarily corrupt, and when rightly run big business is highly helpful to the public or the masses. I believe the men controlling the corporations, on the average, have made good and fully justified the belief of Roosevelt and his supporters. I warmly admired Roosevelt's real courage in daring to attack corrupt big business, as shown in unfair railroad rebates, etc. He exalted the Presidency by using it as a pulpit to preach against predatory wealth, railroad rebates, etc. We sometimes thought he was bluffing because he did not change and execute laws fast enough to suit us, not realizing...
