Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Stone s New Superlative Coat and Vest System: Based Upon the Proportions of the Human Form During the last twenty-five years almost all trades have been doubled in capacity of output. In the field of garment cutting as great changes have been taking place: competition has become acute, not only demanding greater expedition in the work of cutting, but also more accurate and finer work; old cutters have been left behind, old methods superseded, old systems abandoned. This is inevitable. All things change, and the law of their change is that they shall change for the better, otherwise they are on the road to extinction. So that while a system may have answered all the requirements of first-class cutting but a short time ago, to-day it may be lacking in every essential that a first-rate system should possess. Systems which have for basis unsound or inadequate principles cannot keep abreast of progress; and how can they do so when they have no basic principles whatever, being little more than a conglomeration of rules, and therefore incapable of further development? Such was the condition of all known systems when I first published my Superlative Coat and Vest System; it was an answer to the demand for a scientific system of cutting, and was based upon the true proportions of the human form. It led further to the production of my Short Measure Coat and Vest System, and it leads now to this revised and enlarged edition of my Superlative Coat and Vest System. The principles remain the same. They have been developed in harmony with the progress of cutting, making a system which lends itself to...
