Reviews

This type of publication is every thing and helped me seeking ahead and much more. It usually fails to charge too much. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.

Not illustrated. 1905 Excerpt: .THE VALUE OF ORAL EXPRESSION I do not wish to depreciate in the least the value and importance of written language. I simply wish to call attention to the practical value of oral language and to the relation of this form of expression to the written form. It appears to me that too many teachers regard their language work as having to do exclusively with written language; they seem to think that writing is the only use there is for language. A few persons have such great thoughts, or such beautiful thoughts, that they need to write them down for the benefit of their fellow-men. Many persons use the written language for professional and business purposes, but the great majority of people have less need of written language than is generally supposed. This is not an age of letter-writing; in fact, letter-writing is almost a lost art. The ease with which news is transmitted by telegraph, telephone, and newspapers, obviates the necessity of the masses using the written language extensively. The division of labor appears to operate in this as in all other departments of modern life, and so we have a special class of professional writers while the majority of people busy themselves with other affairs. With the spoken language the case is different; every one needs this to make his wants known and for daily intercourse with his fellows. The humblest laborer needs it as well as the professional man. He may not be...
